Dear Ms Hardie,

I would like to know why high-rises are not being proposed. We need to have open green spaces, with vegetation and trees. Packing in 2-story buildings is bad for the environment and for health of dwellers.

All over Europe the model is proposing high density and affordability via height. Not only in Europe is this the model but in new forward looking plans all over the world, except as apparent in the US. This is a horrendous oversight, and reliance on past outdated models that do not take into consideration climate change and the detriment to the environment of the type of out dated models that you are proposing.

Thank you

Maryjean Dotis
